Dr. Ragster is a conservationist, research scientist, and past university president who has not only transformed the Caribbean region, but has earned national and worldwide respect from leading climate change scientists and environmental leaders. She graduated from UC San Diego in 1980 with a Ph.D. in Biology/Plant Biochemistry, and is returning to campus to accept this year's Professional Achievement Award from the UCSD Alumni Association. Please join WISE/GradWISE in a special event with Dr. Ragster, when she will share with us how she has successfully maneuvered in her career path.
